

Emma Palmer

2001 to 2006

Emma Palmer went on to study a national diploma in performing arts (production) at Hull College before progressing to a degree in stage management and technical theatre.

Since her graduation she has worked as a freelance stage manager with the BBC, Ensemble 52, Status Theatre Company, National Youth Music Theatre and One Off Productions, as well as running workshops based on stage management and technical theatre.

She also works with Hull College's student union as enterprise officer, looking into entrepreneurship and work opportunities for students.

Emma is hoping to take a PGCE course so she can teach stage management at a college level and continue her workshops further.
