

Kimberley Jones

1999 to 2004

Kimberley left Kelvin Hall School in 2004 with 10 GCSEs and went on to Wyke College to pursue A Levels in physical education, chemistry and biology.

In 2006, she went to University College Birmingham to complete a BSc in Sports Therapy and achieved 2.1 honours.

After university, Kimberley took a gap year and worked in New Jersey, USA, at a summer camp for underprivileged children. By working with these children she knew that she would like work with children again when she returned home.

After returning to Hull, she pursued her training as a sports therapist before opening her own sports injury clinic within Hull but later decided that teaching children was the path she wanted to take.

In January 2012, Kimberley started working at Kelvin Hall School as a cover supervisor and is hoping to train as a teacher within physical education.
