

Steve Chambers

1999 - 2004

Steve Chambers went to Wyke College after leaving school and studied mathematics, physics and English. While at college he was sponsored by Imperial College London to write a scientific paper on merging black holes, which he presented in the USA.

Over the course of his mathematics degree, which he read at Imperial College, he set up an online business and interned at a charity and two hedge funds. Upon graduating he joined a hedge fund where he now works as an analyst.

Steve also enjoys writing music with his band, The Peas. Last year, the band had recording sessions in London and will soon be releasing their own songs commercially for the first time. Follow @thepeasband for more information.
